Defence Bank. Serving those who protect us.

When we set a target last year to reduce our gender pay gap to below 28%, we knew achieving it would require more than aspiration. It would require deliberate action, clear accountability and a commitment to creating greater opportunities for our employees at every level of the Bank.

I'm pleased to report that this year we met and surpassed that target. Importantly, we exceeded our Board-approved target by 3%, demonstrating the positive impact of our continued focus on gender equality. Our gender pay gap reduced from 31.2% to 25.0%, representing significant progress in our journey towards greater gender equality. While we recognise there is still work to do, this achievement demonstrates that sustained focus and targeted action can deliver measurable change.

This progress has been supported by positive shifts in workforce representation. Women now comprise the majority of our Executive Leadership Team, holding five of the eight executive positions, while female representation across our broader management population increased to 56%. These outcomes reflect our focus on creating opportunities for talented employees to progress and succeed regardless of gender.

These results did not happen by chance. They reflect deliberate action through our transformation to strengthen leadership pipelines, remove barriers to progression and create a more inclusive workplace where opportunity is based on capability and contribution.

Our commitment to gender equality extends beyond pay, through flexible work practices, inclusive leadership and equitable people processes, we continue to build an environment where employees feel valued, supported and empowered to do their best work.

As part of our annual submission to the Workplace Gender Equality Agency (WGEA), we are pleased to share both our results and the actions that continue to shape our progress. While external reporting provides an important measure of accountability, our commitment to gender equality is embedded in how we lead the Bank every day.

The progress achieved this year is encouraging, but we do not view it as an end point. Our focus remains on strengthening diverse talent pipelines, improving representation in areas where gender imbalances persist and ensuring all employees have equal access to development and career opportunities.

I am proud of what we have achieved and confident that, by maintaining this momentum, we will continue to create a more inclusive workplace for current and future generations of Defence Bank employees.

As members of our Bank, you may comment on the report by emailing Kristen Bugeja, Chief People Officer at kristen.bugeja@defencebank.com.au or by contacting the Agency directly. Please refer to www.wgea.gov.au for the Agency's guidelines on this process.

Warm regards,

Roberto Scenna
Chief Executive Officer

Report overview.

Progress through purposeful action

At Defence Bank, we believe creating a more equitable workplace requires more than good intentions. It requires clear goals, accountability and a willingness to challenge the structures and workforce patterns that contribute to inequality.

Over the past year, we have focused on turning commitment into measurable action. Last year, Defence Bank publicly committed to reducing its gender pay gap to below 28%. This year, we reduced our gender pay gap from 31.2% to 25.0%, exceeding our Board-approved target by 3% and achieving the most significant improvement in recent years.

The result reflects the impact of deliberate initiatives designed to improve gender representation across leadership, strengthen diversity within talent pipelines and create greater opportunities for women to progress throughout the bank.

While we recognise gender equality is an ongoing journey, this year's outcome demonstrates that consistent, long-term action can deliver meaningful results.

A shift in workforce representation

One of the most encouraging developments during the reporting period has been the continued improvement in female representation across leadership positions.

Women now represent the majority of Defence Bank's Key Management Personnel, following the appointment of three female executives to the Executive Leadership Team. Across our broader management population, female representation increased to 56%, with the number of women in management roles growing from 36 to 41. This demonstrates positive momentum in strengthening gender representation across leadership levels at the Bank.

These changes are helping build a more representative leadership structure and supporting improved gender equality outcomes across the Bank. These results also demonstrate the importance of creating pathways for talented employees to progress into leadership positions. By focusing on capability, opportunity and succession planning, we are developing a stronger and more diverse leadership pipeline for the future.

Understanding this year's result

The gender pay gap measures the difference between the average earnings of women and men across an organisation. It is not a measure of equal pay for equal work.

Defence Bank Workplace Gender Equality Report 2025-2026.

Defence Bank remains confident in the equity of its remuneration practices. Through annual remuneration reviews, benchmarking and analysis of comparable roles, we continue to see minimal gender-based differences in pay when employees perform equivalent work.

The reduction in this year's gender pay gap has been influenced by several factors, including increased female representation in leadership positions, stronger succession planning outcomes, targeted recruitment activity and continued investment in flexible and inclusive employment practices. Together, these initiatives are helping address structural workforce imbalances and create greater opportunities for women across the Bank.

Building a workplace where everyone can thrive

Our approach to gender equality extends beyond remuneration and representation. We recognise that inclusion is created through everyday experiences, policies and leadership behaviours. Through flexible work practices, support for parents and carers, diverse career opportunities and a strong focus on employee wellbeing, we continue to create an environment where people can build meaningful careers while balancing personal commitments. These initiatives not only support our employees but also strengthen our ability to attract and retain talented people from diverse backgrounds.

Looking forward

The achievements of this reporting period provide encouragement that we are moving in the right direction. However, we recognise that sustainable change requires ongoing commitment.

Our focus remains on continuing to increase representation in leadership roles, improving gender balance in occupational categories where disparities remain, strengthening succession pathways and monitoring our progress through transparent reporting and accountability.

Rather than viewing this year's result as the end of a journey, we see it as evidence that our strategy is working. We remain committed to building a workplace where all employees have equal opportunity to succeed and where diversity strengthens our culture, our decision-making and the service we provide for our members.

Public Reports

WGEA publishes your Public Report, excluding any personal information, on the Data Explorer. WGEA uses its contents for other purposes in electronic or other formats.

What makes up your Public Report?

Your Public Report consists of 2 documents, which you can generate and download after preparing your submission for lodgement:

- Public Report – Questionnaire
- Public Report – Employee Data Tables

Before lodgement

The Public Report must be:

- given to your CEO or equivalent for review, approval and sign off before lodgement.
- shared in accordance with the Notification and Access requirements under the Workplace Gender Equality Act 2012.

Reporting contacts will be asked to declare in the WGEA Employer Portal that all relevant CEOs or equivalents have signed the Public Report.

For detailed information on the requirements to share the Public Report with your employees, members or shareholders, refer to the online Reporting Guide under Notification and Access requirements.

Gender Equality Standards

If your organisation is a single entity employing 500 or more employees, you must have a policy or strategy in place against each of the 6 Gender Equality Indicators. More information can be found within the online Reporting Guide on Gender Equality Standards.

Gender Equality Targets

If your organisation is an employer that directly employs 500 or more employees, you must select and commit to achieve 3 gender equality targets from a menu of 19 options. At the end of 3 years, you must meet or demonstrate improvement against each selected target. More information can be found on Gender Equality Targets: Frequently Asked Questions.

Workplace overview

Policies and strategies

Employer policies or strategies on workplace gender equality and the composition of the workforce can be powerful levers for making progress and change. Policies or strategies are most effective when supported by evidence-informed action plans to address areas of imbalance and inequality. Similarly, targets are achievable, time-framed goals that create mechanisms for accountability and are effective when combined with dedicated actions to help achieve them.

Action on gender equality

Gender pay gaps

The gender pay gap is the difference in average or median earnings between women and men. It is a measure of how we value the contribution of women and men in the workforce. The gender pay gap is not to be confused with women and men being paid the same for the same, or comparable, job – this is equal pay. Equal pay for equal work is a legal requirement in Australia. However, illegal instances of unequal pay can still be one of the many drivers of the gender pay gap. Closing the gender pay gap is important for Australia's economic future and reflects our aspiration to be an equal and fair society for all.

2.1 Do you have formal policies and/or formal strategies on equal remuneration (pay equity and the gender pay gap) between women and men?

Yes

Policy

2.1a Do the formal policies and/or formal strategies include any of the following?

To implement and/or maintain a transparent and rigorous performance assessment process; Other (provide details)

Other: To pay fairly and competitively when compared to the mutual banking sector

2.2 Have you conducted analysis to determine if there are remuneration gaps between women and men?

Yes

2.2a What type of gender remuneration gap analysis has been undertaken?

Like-for-like pay gaps analysis which compares the same or similar roles of equal or comparable value to identify unequal pay; A by-level gap analysis which compares the difference between women's and men's average pay within the same employee category; Overall gender pay gap analysis to identify the difference between women's and men's average pay and gender composition across the whole organisation

2.2b When was the most recent gender remuneration gap analysis undertaken?

Within the last 12 months

2.2c Did you take any actions as a result of your gender remuneration gap analysis?

Yes

Identified cause/s of the gaps; Reviewed remuneration decision-making processes

2.3 If your organisation would like to provide additional information relating to employer action on pay equity and/or gender remuneration gaps in your workplace, please do so below.

Action on gender equality

Employee consultation

Engaging employees through consultation on gender equality issues helps employers to understand the employee experience and to take meaningful action. Employers can use the information they learn through the consultation process to generate solutions that are practical and relevant to their organisation.

Flexible working arrangements

Flexible working

A flexible working arrangement is an agreement between an employer and an employee to change the standard working arrangement, often through a change to the hours, pattern or location of work. Flexible work is a key enabler of gender equality, helps accommodate an employee's commitments out of work and has become increasingly important for employers in attracting and retaining diverse and talented employees.

Employee support for parents and carers

Paid parental leave

Parental leave policies are designed to support and protect working parents around the time of childbirth or adoption of a child and when children are young. Some employers offer universally available parental leave policies, offering equal parental leave for all parents, others offer with a distinction between 'primary' and 'secondary' carers. It's important that the policy is available to all parents, irrespective of gender, recognising the equally important role of all parents in caregiving. Gender equal policies help to de-gender the ideal worker and carer norms, which pervade the workplace and reduce opportunities for women to remain in, or re-enter the workforce.

4.1 Do you provide employer-funded paid parental leave in addition to any government-funded parental leave scheme?

Yes, we offer employer funded parental leave using the primary/secondary carer distinction
